

Marketing Annual Membership to Casual Riders

Cyclistic Bike-Share

By: Johnny Yan

Objective

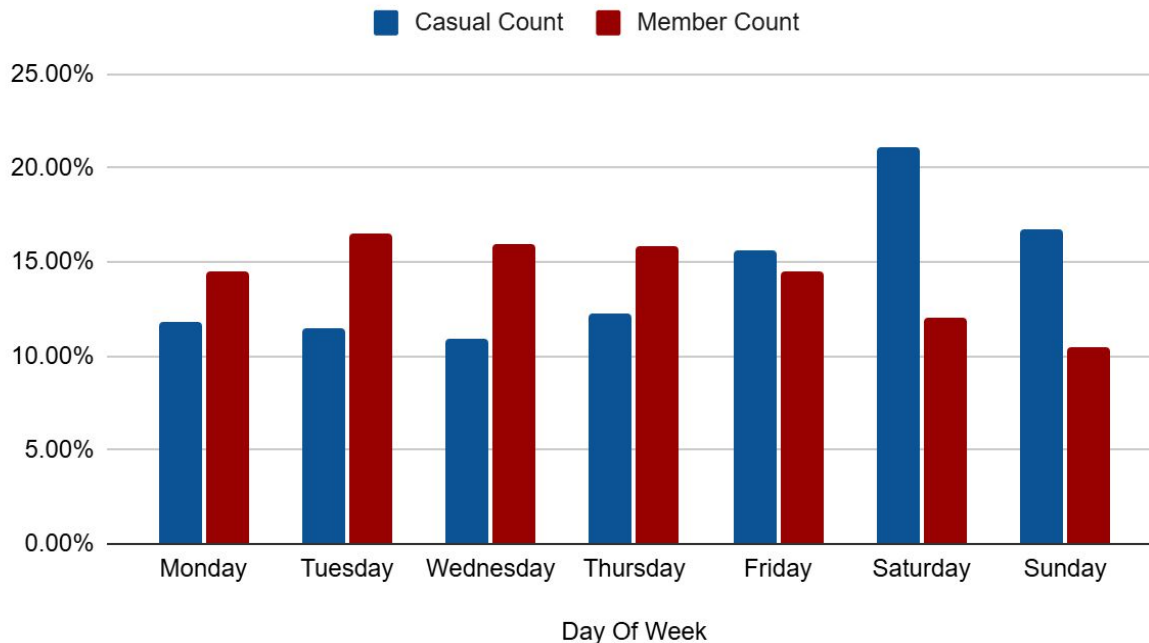

→ Identify ways to convert casual riders to annual members

Objective

- How do annual members and casual riders use Cyclistic bikes differently?
- Why would casual riders buy Cyclistic annual memberships?
- How can Cyclistic use digital media to influence casual riders to become members?

Riding Behavior

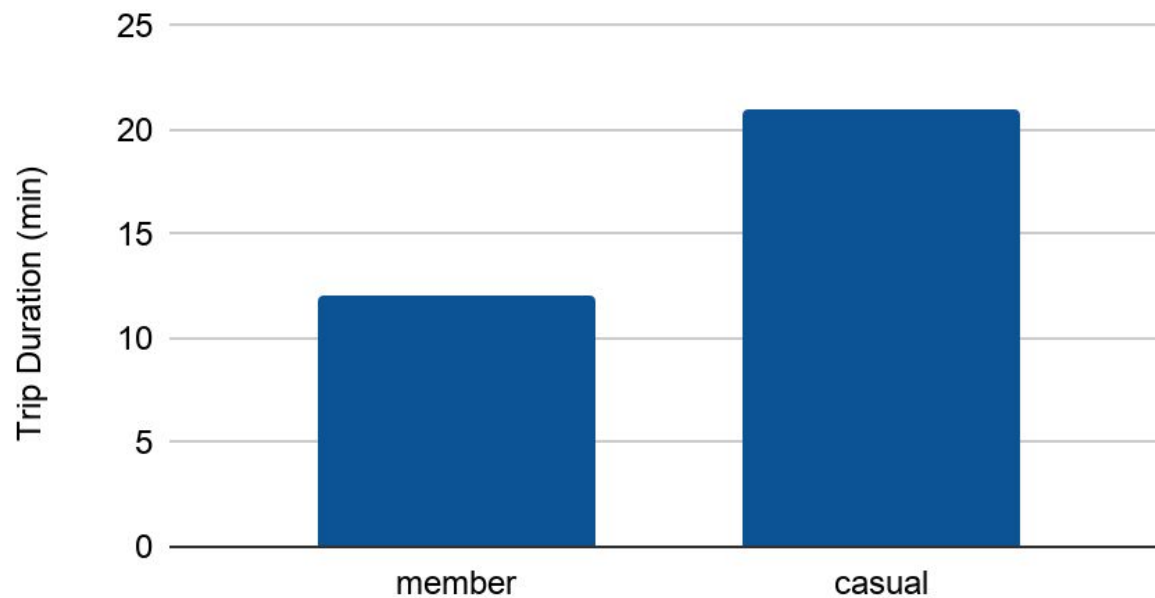

Rides By Day Of Week

- Casual riders prefer to ride over the weekend
- Members ride the most during weekdays

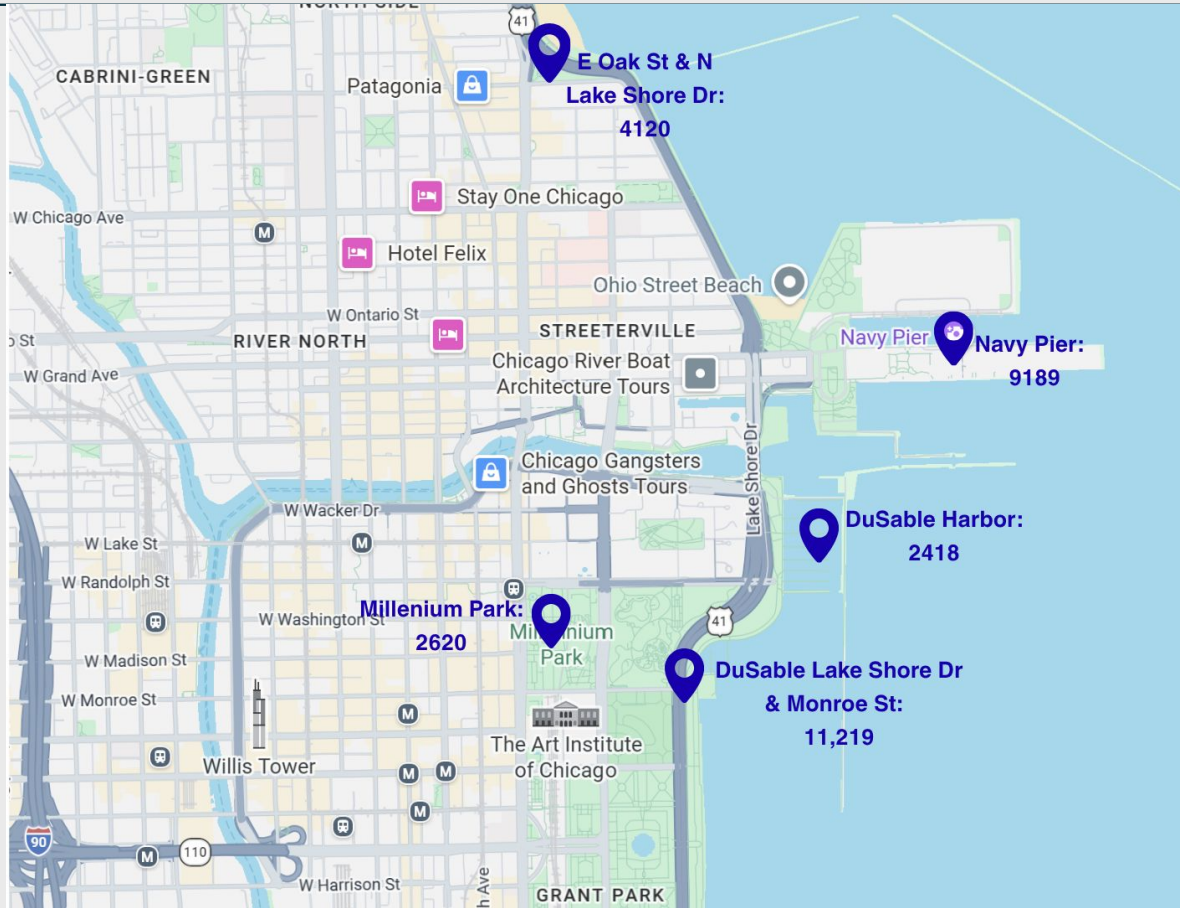

Riding Behavior

Average Trip Duration

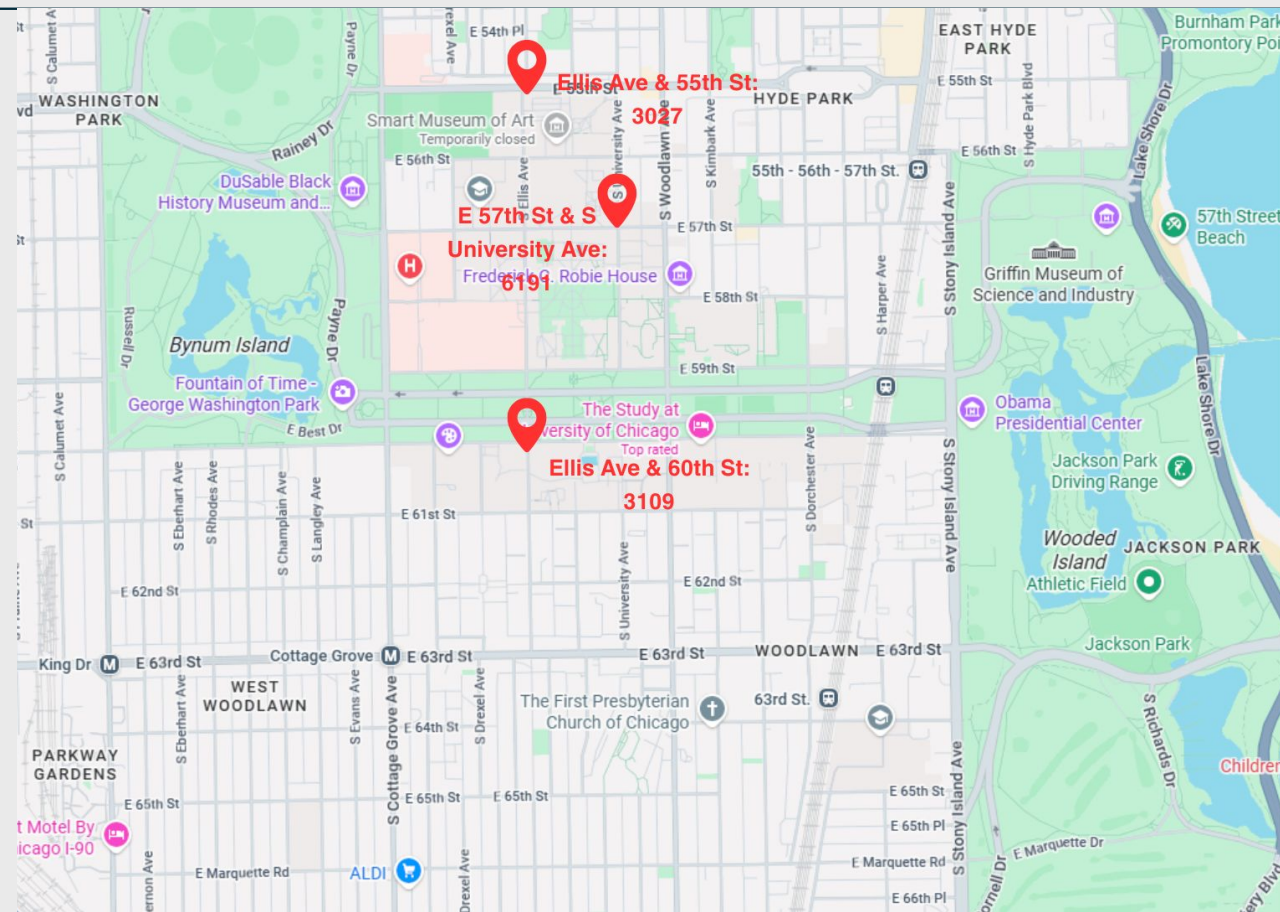

- Casual rides are almost double the length

Where They Ride: Casual

- Near the shore and around recreational areas

Where They Ride: Members

- Deeper in the city
- Stations are near the University of Chicago

→ How do annual members and casual riders use Cyclistic bikes differently?

→ Casual riders use bikeshare for recreational purposes, while members use it more consistently for commuting

→ Why would casual riders buy Cyclistic annual memberships?

→ Casual riders spend longer on average using our service, so a membership makes frequent recreational riding more convenient and cost-effective

- How can Cyclistic use digital media to influence casual riders to become members?
- Geo-target ads near beaches, piers, and parks
- Advertise the convenience and flexibility of membership
- Promote health benefits of rides along scenic routes

→ Summary & Final Recommendations

- Advertise membership not as a product for commuters but as a way to get more out of the recreational riding they are already doing.
- Target the locations casual riders are frequenting the most.

→ Thank You

If you have any questions, contact:
yanjohnny4@gmail.com